The Oregon State University International Film Festival

Join us in celebrating the first event of the International Film Festival, organized and hosted by the School of Language, Culture, and Society in partnership with the School of Writing, Literature, and Film. Founded in 2009, the festival showcases different perspectives in contemporary filmmaking from around the world every year. Enjoy this first screening of the festival at the classic, independently-owned and locally-operated, Cinema 21 in the heart of Portland.

"Mademoiselle Paradis", is set in Vienna, 1777. Maria Theresia ("Resi") Paradis, 18 years old, is blind, and a pianist of remarkable talent. Resi lost her eyesight literally overnight when she was three. After countless failed medical experiments, her overprotective parents seek out a controversial "miracle doctor" Franz Anton Mesmer, as their last hope for a cure. Mesmer's treatments seem to have almost immediate success. However, Resi soon notices that as her sight is beginning to return, her musical virtuosity is declining. This film is in German with English subtitles.
